Our response:

The data for question 1 –3 was extracted from a search of the Force records management system, Niche. Following a review of the Force Crime Recording Rules for the Act 'Criminal Justice Act 1967, Section 91', one British Transport Police crime code — 'Z40 Drunk and Disorderly' — was identified. The year has been determined based on the date of arrest.

Please find attached two separate excel spreadsheets, detailing arrests for both ‘Z40 Drunk and Disorderly’ and offences under the Public Order Act.

Please note:

- British Transport Police is required to record crime even where demographic information relating to victims and/or suspects is incomplete, as not all individuals choose to disclose their gender or other protected characteristics to the police. A search of the force records management system, Niche identified arrest records where gender was recorded as “Not stated”, “Indeterminate” or “Unknown”. These records have not been included in the attached spreadsheet, as the request specifically related to individuals recorded as “female”.
- One single suspect may have several arrests.
